Overview

Emotional intelligence is the key to success inside and outside the workplace. People with high emotional intelligence are able to navigate the hybrid world of work with greater resilience, building more effective relationships and managing conflict more easily.

The great news is that emotional intelligence is not a fixed trait – it can be developed! More people than ever before are now recognising this and actively seeking to further develop their emotional intelligence.

This thought-provoking and practical workshop will encourage you to assess your own emotional intelligence and give you tools to develop your EQ further.
