Advanced – Develop the ability to adapt your communication style, apply influence techniques, and strengthen stakeholder buy-in and commitment.

Effective communication has become a critical capability in today's increasingly complex business environment. Organizations are under growing pressure to deliver projects faster, control costs, and provide the functionality required to support innovation and stronger business outcomes. As a result, professionals involved in projects need to communicate effectively with a wide range of stakeholders.

Understanding stakeholder needs, influencing direction, and achieving desired outcomes all depend on strong communication skills. However, effective communication can be challenging. Individuals have different expectations, preferences, and communication needs. As stakeholder groups become more diverse and communication increasingly takes place through virtual channels, the risk of misunderstanding can also increase significantly.

The Effective Stakeholder Communication Training provides participants with the knowledge, techniques, and practical approaches required to improve communication with stakeholders. The course covers everything from understanding personal communication tendencies and adapting to stakeholder preferences to influencing, negotiating, and facilitating effective face-to-face and virtual meetings.

Prerequisites

Where pre-course work is provided, participants are advised to complete it approximately one week before the training and bring the completed material to the course.

Who Should Attend

This training is suitable for professionals who work with stakeholders and want to:

- Improve communication effectiveness by using a range of communication methods
- Strengthen influencing and negotiation skills to achieve better outcomes
- Conduct more effective face-to-face and virtual meetings
